Being a good hand at carpentering, Hiram Dohner kept his Chevrolet Royal Mail roadster in excellent running condition for 22 years and then had a 1936 model presented to him as a sort of reward. Hiram lives in Quintin, in the valley of the Susquehanna. When the Chevrolet people set out to find the oldest Chevrolet in point of continuous service, the roadster of the Pennsylvania carpenter won hands down, with a few marks thrown in for neatness. The Dohners, Hiram and Mary, take care of things, and their family transportation, even with 250,000 miles registered, was as slick and shiny as a two-year-old. Upkeep had cost $250, including 3 paintings and a new top. The Dohners were Chevrolet's guests at Detroit, where they were given a 1936 model, a distinguished one, for it was the one millionth Chevrolet built in the calendar year.

The Code for Printers.

The new Code of Ethics and Prices for commercial printers in Alberta will be proclaimed as from today, Oct. 15, according to an announcement made on Saturday last by Hon. E. C. Manning, Minister of Trade and Industry. The Proclamation will appear in Oct. 15 issue of Alberta Gazette.

The Minister said that since acceptance by the Government there had been no reduction in prices as had been reported from the southern part of the province.

During the negotiations between the Department and the printers' representatives there had been some revision of prices. Prices on some classes of work had been reduced as much as 10 and 15 p. c. and other articles had been scaled upward.

A cursory glance over the new Code gives one the impression that patrons who give their local printer an order for printing will have to pay more than formerly for their small order, or else increase the amount of the order to more than what suffices for their immediate wants.

A fellow has to be a contortionist these days. First he has to keep his back to the wall and his ear to the ground. Then he must put his shoulder to the wheel, his nose to the grindstone, keep a level head and have both feet on the ground. Not to mention keeping his chin up, his weather eye peeled and his head out of the clouds.

Year-Round Fire Prevention

Fire prevention week has come and gone, but fire hazards are still extant. If, however, the lessons learned during the recent fire prevention week's campaign are taken to heart and borne in mind, the risks of loss of life and property from this source should be minimized, in any event for a short time until memory withers.

In a country like Western Canada, however, fire prevention week should be every week of the year round, so far as the individual is concerned, and certainly from October 1, when hard stoking commences, until about April 7 when furnaces and stoves are extinguished for a short summer season.

As indicated at the outset memory soon lapses, and while impressions of the importance of care and precaution in the handling of fire may be vivid during the course of a public campaign, such as accompanies an event like fire prevention week, they soon fade. Such campaigns serve a useful purpose temporarily, but whether they are effective permanently depends upon the receptiveness and retentiveness of the individual mind.

Moreover, with fire, as with everything else, familiarity breeds contempt. The continuous use of fire in the home or store, day in and day out for 24 hours of the day is apt to result in relaxation of precautionary measures against potential contingencies. This, coupled with increasing impairment and declining efficiency of equipment as the long winter months drag towards a close, combines to enhance the hazards of loss from conflagration.

These observations are inspired by the facts which statistics of Dominion and provincial authorities and fire insurance companies and newspaper stories record.

Despite the annual campaign which is carried on with much vigor and great publicity by these combined forces in an effort to hasten precaution in the public mind, the fire demon continues to take a terrible toll of life and property in this Dominion.

When it is reported that on the average, every day in the year one life is sacrificed and more than one person injured by fire and $110,000 worth of property goes up in smoke in Canada, the phrase "terrible toll" assumes definite significance and gives graphic portrayal to the adage which says that "fire is a good servant but a bad master."

A daily loss of property of $110,000 is equivalent to approximately $40,000,000 a year. The enormity of this sacrifice to the fire god can be better appreciated when it is pointed out that the figure is a close parallel to the Dominion government's contribution under relief legislation in each of the years 1931 and 1934, the two years in which federal expenditures for this purpose reached a peak since the depression started. In 1931 the federal government's relief bill amounted to $42,716,715 and in 1934 it was $36,980,144, according to the Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

In other words, the people of Canada, on the one hand, are destroying annually $40,000,000 of property as a result of their carelessness in handling fire and on the other hand, are, in heaviest unemployment years, paying out approximately the same amount for relief of unemployment, through federal taxation channels.

Much concern has been shown and is being shown over the large sums which the federal government has had to pay out in its efforts to grapple with the loss occasioned by unemployment and industrial and agricultural depression. Figures of expenditures for this purpose and articles dealing with various phases of the cost of unemployment and depression have been published almost daily during the past few years, yet but little is heard of the equally heavy loss occasioned by fire, except once a year when the annual fire prevention campaign is in progress.

And yet this heavy fire loss is more easy to cope with than the unemployment and relief problem. All that is required is the exercise of the same care the year round as that which people display in the handling of fire during fire prevention week when the subject is fresh in their minds.

It is not necessary to recapitulate here and now the lessons which have been taught during fire prevention week, the precautions which must be taken to ensure that loved ones will not be burned to death or maimed for life and to prevent the destruction of homes, barns or other buildings and furniture. If only people will train themselves to remember and practice these precautions and to maintain vigilance the year round, this tremendous toll of life and property can be reduced almost to zero.

Ideals Of The League

Hon. E. B. Bennett Voices' Appeal
On Behalf Of League Support

Hon. R. B. Bennett, Canadian Conservative leader, told an Australian service club that the British Dominion must support every agency whereby the collective power of mankind prevailed against those threatening annihilation of the civilized world.

Mr. Bennett voiced a fervent appeal on behalf of the ideals of the League of Nations. "Because there has been a failure to realize the fullest hopes for the League, we cannot discard it in its entirety," Mr. Bennett said. "I refuse to believe Napoleon's maxim that God is on the side of the heaviest battalions."

The former Canadian prime minister said that while human nature had defeated the hopes for the League as enunciated by Aristide Briand, the ideal remained. "Although the League lamentably failed to express punitive power against an offending nation, the world must try again." He said that the British Dominions must support the League to this end.

Mr. Bennett asked Australians not to consider Canada as an appendage of the United States. The choicest of our nation laid down their lives on the fields of Flanders in British loyalty and Canada has no idea that any other nation exercises suzerainty or provides its protection. We are proud of our place in the Empire and conscious of our responsibility as being midway between Europe and Asia."

They had been married just about two months. Lunch was in progress. "Darling!" he said suddenly. "This steak tastes funny."

"Oh, yes, dear," she replied, "I forgot to tell you. I burnt it, so I put some vaseline on it!"

Gold Production Gains

Production In Canada During 1935
Greatest In History

Gold production in Canada during July 1935, advanced to 319,508 ounces compared with 316,670 ounces in June and 285,765 ounces in July a year ago. Production during the first seven months of 1935 totalled 2,087,014 ounces, an increase of 15.9 per cent. over the corresponding period of 1934. The price of gold during July averaged $34.91 per ounce, in Canadian funds, and valued at this price the Canadian output during the month was worth $11,158,920.

Gold production in Canada during 1935 was the greatest in her history both in amount and value. The output every month so far this year has been greater than in the corresponding month a year ago, and all indications point to a new high production record for 1935.

John Carveth Wells, son of the famous explorer and who walked around the world in two years, may never walk again. At 25 he lies paralyzed in St. Pancras Hospital in London. After a gay and colorful life John Wells started a motion picture publication in London. He planned it, collected the news and the advertisements, and printed it himself. For months he worked from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. One day he collapsed in his office. Within 36 hours he could not move any part of his body. He has recovered the use of his hands and his head. Courage and determination have brought him through, and he declares he will not give up the fight to walk again.

Increase German Army

Conscription To Raise Fighting
Force To 800,000 Men

A widespread increase was ordered in the German military establishment as Nazi officials began conscription to raise their fighting force to 800,000 men under the new two-year compulsory service rule.

Hitler, taking a leaf from the Kaiser Wilhelm system, decreed the two-year service Aug. 24 to become effective Oct. 1. The training period previously was one year.

The recruits are 21 and 22 years of age—Germany's war babies—parts of the classes of 1914 and 1915. They will be distributed among the land, air and sea forces and represent an increase of from one-fourth to one-third in the nation's armed strength.

Distinguished Traveller Pays Fitting Tribute To Our Mountain Scenery

Many tributes to the great natural beauty of Canada's National Parks in the Rockies have been paid by visitors from at home and abroad. Artists, explorers, and mountaineers have joined in praising the scenic beauty and grandeur of the great mountain playground administered by the Department of the Interior. One of the most recent to add his appreciation of the National Parks in the Rockies to Dr. W. G. N. Van der Sleen, of Haarlem, Holland, distinguished naturalist, writer, and world traveller. Dr. Van der Sleen has, as he describes it himself in a letter to Mr. J. B. Harkin, Commissioner of National Parks in the Department of the Interior, "camped in the Himalayas, traversed the Andes, climbed the volcanoes of Java, and down over the Alps." Having viewed these masterpieces of nature, he says "that the marvelous mountain scenery in some parts of the Rockies is unsurpassed."

Continuing, Dr. Van der Sleen describes his impressions of his recently concluded six-weeks visit to the Canadian Rockies as follows:

"The most surprising beauty of the Canadian Rockies lies in its lakes, and in the manifold settings nature placed them in. The wonderful Valley of the Ten Peaks forms the ideal frame for a gem like Moraine Lake. The mysterious beauty of Lake O'Hara, mirroring the glaciers on the mountain tops, and just separated from them by the dark rocky wall over which the Seven Sisters come tumbling and sprinkling, hurrying and tinkling, drawing glimpses of foaming sunlight between the glaciers glowing in the evening sun, and the already slumbering lake. Lake O'Hara seems to me one of the most beautiful spots on earth. Then think of the flower fields of Paradise Valley, the Dolomite Sentinels on Sentinel Pass. And all this to be reached in one day from beautiful Lake Louise as a center!

"With immense pleasure I made the whole Rocky Mountain circuit tour, enjoyed the beavers on Bow River just as much as the Stoney Indians on the racetracks. Then took the train via Kamloops to Jasper to cross the Rockies and Selkirk, and delight in the beautiful vistas the train journey offers. We spent a week around Jasper of the Lakes and I found there some of the most imposing glacier views. When the new road from Jasper to Lake Louise is built some 20 miles shorter than it is now, it will almost too easy to reach the Athabasca and Dome glaciers, floating down from the huge Columbia icefields. That part of the road is going to be counted amongst the most beautiful stretches of scenic highway to be found in the world."

The Care Of Milk

Containers Should Be Scrupulously Clean And Kept Covered

No matter what precautions have been taken to produce clean milk, or what hygienic methods have been adopted in delivery, it cannot be expected to keep well if it is treated carelessly afterwards.

As soon as possible after delivery, milk should be put in a cool, clean place, and kept there until it is required for use. It deteriorates by exposure to the air, and it should therefore always be kept covered. A further danger that arises if it is left uncovered is contamination by flies.

Milk should never be put in a warm jug or basin, but into scrupulously clean vessels; never into dusty or soiled containers. All vessels used for milk should be rinsed with water at or near boiling point, and then again rinsed with clean, cold water. They should not be wiped with a cloth that has been used for other dishes.

New milk should never be mixed with old milk unless it is for immediate use. The old milk is likely to contain a larger proportion of bacteria, and if the weather is hot souring will occur.

There are about 1,000,000 square miles of lake and river surface on the earth.

Made By Scottish Queen

Beautiful Curtain Now In Royal Museum In Edinburgh

A curtain of cerise woolen cloth, now in the Royal Scottish Museum in Edinburgh, is said to have been worked during the years 1567-1568 by Mary Queen of Scots, when that tragic lady was imprisoned on the island which lies in Loch Leven. The tapestry is divided by borders into two panels, each containing a row of three stylized vases of flowers (carnations, pansies, and roses). The borders and valances have a repeating pattern of similar flowers, enclosed by scrolling stems. The whole is worked in a black silk velvet cord and heavily embellished in a yellow silk hatched stitch, which is raised in places by padding. Details are added in satin stitch in various colors.

The character of Mary has long been one of the most fiercely debated questions of history, but her beauty and accomplishments have never been disputed. Born at Linlithgow Palace, brought up at the French court, she spoke three or four languages and wrote easily both in prose and verse. She was, besides, an accomplished needlewoman.

Comparatively Modern Fashion

Socks Had Not Been Heard Of 700 Years Ago

Seven hundred years ago, socks were not known. Men covered their legs with loose cloth wrappings, or with what appear to us as very narrow trousers; and in both cases the leg covering would be bound to the leg with crimson leather straps, to make the shape neat.

At the end of the reign of Henry III, men began to emerge from the long robes and cloaks in which they had always been draped, and took to shorter coats and tunics, combined with long tights.

These tights, or hose, were cut from cloth of various kinds and made to fit the leg by having gussets sewn down the sides as far as the ankles. In the reign of Elizabeth the side seams or gussets of the long hose were covered over with embroidery, sometimes of gold or silver thread.

Nowadays the cloths on socks are only there for ornament; but they bring to mind pictures of the days when doubtless and hose, ruffs and rapiers, Spanish hats and Flemish shoes were the fashion.

Gift From Queen Mary

Museum For Children Recieves Miniature Japanese House

The director of Bethnal Green Museum, London, E., lost one of his finest models in the Children's Gallery of house, recently, reports the Daily News. Thirty of them had taken 15 years to collect. The women who had given many of them decided to take away the Japanese model. The same day it departed another box arrived. It came from Buckingham Palace, and contained a miniature Japanese house almost the same as the one taken away. On a slip of paper was a note in Queen Mary's own handwriting saying that the model was presented to her by King Edward when he returned from the East in 1922.

The model is made in sections like a real Japanese house. The roof comes off and it can all be taken to pieces. It stands 11 inches high and is about 12 inches across. The house is enclosed by a wooden fence of two sides and a hedge on the other two. This is the ninth miniature house which Queen Mary has given to the Bethnal Green children.

The Royal Post Office

Fully Equipped Branch Always On Duty In Windsor Castle

Not many of the hundreds of thousands of visitors to Windsor who are escorted through the Royal Apartments of Windsor Castle may have discovered (says the Post Office Magazine) that there is a fully equipped branch post office inside the Castle itself, and, indeed, in the State apartments, state rooms, and all the year round from the Windsor Head Post Office to afford postal services to the officials and servants of the Royal Household. Delivery and collection services are effected in the ordinary way by the postmen, when the Court is not in residence, but when the Court is at the Castle a full-time postman-in-waiting is provided extra and boy messengers-in-waiting for the additional work inside the Castle itself. During the Court visits the Court Postmaster is present in immediate charge, and then H.M.'s official correspondence and despatch boxes are exchanged directly between Buckingham Palace and Windsor Castle by G.P.O. motor vans. The Gentlemen Porter still takes over His Majesty's personal items, but the Windsor postman effects delivery to the apartments of the Court officials and visiting Ministers and makes collections in the course of the day for the principal despatches.

To Renovate Historic Room

Where Regalia is Always Kept On Eve of Coronation

Among the preparations for next year's Coronation ceremony that are already in hand is the renovation and thorough cleaning of the Jerusalem Chamber in Westminster Abbey. This chamber, by historic usage, becomes the treasure house of the regalia on the eve of every coronation. This is an ancient rite that has been vied in the Abbey ever since the days of Edward the Confessor. Next year, on the day before the Coronation, the Crown, and other Royal ornaments will, in accordance with custom, be borne from the Tower to the Abbey, where they will be placed in the Jerusalem Chamber and guarded throughout the night by Yeoman of the Guard. On the morning of the Coronation the regalia will be removed to the annex at the western end of the Abbey, and it is from there, upon ascent of the King, that the crown of the solemn procession into the church itself is actually formed.

Historic Quit-Rent

Same Horse-Shoes And Nails Taken To Crown For 166 Years

The claim by the Duke of Athol to present the King with two falcons on Coronation morning is but one of many such claims, says the Glasgow Herald, which recalls another quaint quit rent. Six horse-shoes and 41 nails were tendered recently at the London Law Courts to the Crown, represented by the King's Remembrancer, as the City of London's quit rent for a site known as "The Forge," in the parish of St. Clement Danes. "The Forge" ceremony is believed to date back 700 years. It is astonishing proof of the continuity of tradition that the same horse-shoes and nails have been used for 600 years. After the city solicitor has counted out the shoes and nails, the King's Remembrancer pronounces "a good number." The strip of land paid for is said to have been originally granted for the erection of a forge where repairs could be carried out at a tournament of the Knights Templar. Later on it seems that the city authorities collected the rent and passed it on to the Crown. Although the forge has passed out of existence for hundreds of years, the shoes and nails are still handed over with old-time dignity every autumn.

Clean Bill Of Health

General Health Of Eskimos Reported To Be Good

A clean bill of health was given to the Eskimo population of Canada's eastern Arctic land by doctors who returned on the Hudson's Bay Company steamship Nascopie, which makes a far-north voyage once every year.

"The general health of the Eskimos appeared to be very good," asserted Dr. R. G. M. Keeling, British physician who joined the ship at Southampton Island and aided as assistant medical officer on the Nascopie.

There were some cases of scabies, but no other epidemic diseases were encountered at the points they reached. The white man's plague, tuberculosis, had not obtained a foothold in the north, the doctors advised. Cases encountered were in scattered districts.

He had noted "several distressing cases of catarrh, which in one or two instances was causing total blindness."

Flowers are being sought in the Himalayas for the Royal gardens of England, rare poppies and lilies having been found at 10,000 altitude, and others are being searched for in Bhutan at 13,500 feet.

Great Britain has reaffirmed claims to eight islands in the South Sea Phoenix Archipelago, it was revealed in London. While the territory is said to involve only about 16 square miles, with a population of 60, the islands are believed to be of potential naval value.

The move comes at a moment when the question of colonies is being discussed in Germany and Italy is becoming increasingly acute in the minds of those working for European peace and brought immediate reaction in Berlin.

Der Angriff, Nazi newspaper of which Dr. Paul Joseph Goebbels, minister of propaganda, was formerly editor, attacked the move, saying it paved the way for annexation by Australia of the whole sub-Arctic region.

With a streamer heading on page one, the Nazi newspaper calls the action "A gigantic increase in the territory of the British Empire" and termed it evidence of British "hunger for land" and injustice toward German colonial demands.

First news came from German sources, showing how closely the situation is being watched, but it was confirmed officially that two naval sloops, attached to the New Zealand division, had been instructed to "take necessary steps to reaffirm His Majesty's claim" to the Phoenix Islands. This was done by posting signs on palm trees on each of the islands.

The German newspaper emphasized that England's attitude was not dictated by the necessity to find an outlet for excess population and contrasted Australia's population of less than one per square kilometre with 139 in Germany and 153 in Italy.

The newspaper attacked England's "We hold what we have" attitude as proclaimed at the Margate conference of the Conservative party, now in power.

Agriculture Takes To Air

Planes Spray B.C. For Crop To Combat Insects

Agriculture has taken to the air in British Columbia where experimental flights to combat pea aphids have proven successful.

With the tail of his aeroplane spouting poison in billowing clouds, Pilot Maurice McGregor "dusted" more than 100 acres of peas on Sea Island, adjoining Vancouver's municipal airport. Aerial warfare against the insect will be continued over other fields.

The work was originally undertaken as an experiment. Two huge hoppers containing 600 pounds of poison were strapped to the wings of the aeroplane. Metal tubes were carried under the fuselage where they joined together in a huge dust sprayer.

Flying a straight course down the field the pilot was guided in his work by the white area covered in the dusting process. By doubling back and slightly overlapping, an area of 30 acres was sprayed in half an hour that would have taken days to accomplish by the old method.

McGregor flew as low to the ground as possible at a speed of approximately 85 miles an hour. This is believed the first time an aeroplane has been used in farm work in Canada.

Not Using Their Brains

People Could Do Amazing Things Opinion Of Experts

The so-called experts on mental matters are mistaken, that people generally are not using a tenth part of their brain capacity and they believe that if they did, the result would be amazing in the way of achievement. Their opinion is that the outstanding leaders in various human activities are simply those who have learned how to use a slightly larger percentage of their mental endowment than the average.

Hon. T. A. Creer, federal minister of interior, in an interview at Jasper, Alta., said that the Jasper-Banff scenic highway in the Rocky Mountains would be completed in the next two years.

A closer political and economic relationship with the rest of the empire, and participation in Empire defence were essential for Canada, Hon. G. Howard Ferguson told the Canadian Club in Toronto.

Formal request that a segment of the better broadcasting channels be set aside for exclusive use of educational institutions was laid before the United States communications commission as it opened a hearing on proposed revisions of radio regulations.

Reformation Stamps

Two new stamps are now on sale at Copenhagen. They have been issued in connection with the 400th anniversary of the Reformation. Both stamps bear a portrait of Hans Tausen (1494-1561), the champion of Luther's doctrines in Denmark, based on a portrait in the Frederiksborg gallery.

Crooning might be classed as "singing" music. Some authorities, however, opine it calls for more severe punishment.

Another Life For Science

French Noblewoman Continued X-Ray Studies To Aid Sick

To the list of those who have given their life for science is now added the name of the clever and charming Duchess de Bronca.

The career of this "Florence Nightingale of France" is one of the most amazing examples of a woman's heroism in medicine.

Beginning at an early age in one of the leading X-ray centres in Paris, she rapidly gained a reputation as a brilliant radiologist.

After her marriage to the Duc de Bronca she insisted on continuing the work of bringing relief to hundreds of patients. Nearly two years ago she was taken ill. The rays had burnt into her skin and affected the tissues.

Her fellow-radiologists begged her to give up the work, and to go into hospital for treatment. "I would rather go on," she said, in a letter.

"We must all die sooner or later. I am a trained radiologist, and to give up my work would be to deprive a large number of people of vital aid."

The duchess invented a special type of electrically heated needle, regarded as a very important advance in X-ray treatment, and helped to perfect other X-ray instruments.

The effect of the rays on her health gradually increased. She lost one of the fingers on her right hand and her hand had to be amputated.

Then her arm was poisoned and was also amputated. Still she kept on at her post.

Could Not Accept Gift

Horse Offered To King Edward Had To Be Bought

The borough of Salford in Lancashire, England, offered the king as a gift a chestnut gelding called Cherry Grove, bought two years ago for the chief constable. Cherry Grove stands 16 hands high.

It is against etiquette for royalty to accept gifts outside their own immediate circle.

But the Duke of Beaufort, master of the horse, inspected Cherry Grove and bought him for £150 ($750). Henceforth he becomes the king's charger.

Agricultural Revenue Up

The total gross agricultural revenue of British Columbia is estimated at $42,419,992 for 1935, an increase of $2,093,851, or 6.51 per cent, over 1934.

Increases are shown in the revenue from farm animals, wool, dairy products, fruit and vegetables, poultry and eggs, fodder crops, hops, nursery stock, and fur-farming. Minor decreases are shown in the revenue from grains, potatoes, honey, tobacco, and seeds. Compared with the preceding year, slightly higher average prices were recorded in most branches of the agricultural industry.

Creating Pasture Lands

Research Has Done Much For Welsh Mountain Area

Scientists working at the plant-breeding station of the University of Wales, have almost completed experiments in breeding grasses which will stand the rigors of Welsh mountain climate.

There is a dearth of suitable pasture land in Wales, but nearly 20 years' research now makes it possible to produce pastures in strange places.

One outcome of the labors will be to facilitate all-season crops of strawberries, raspberries, apples, pears, and vegetables, normally available only during a few weeks in the year.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas builds up your stomach. You get constipated. Harmful poisons go into the body and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks pink.

A new liver movement doesn't always get at the cause. You need something that works on the liver as well. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get that two pounds of bile flowing freely and make two more pounds of bile. That's the way to make the bile flow freely. They do the work of a dozen other liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. It's absolutely certain anything else.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

OCTOBER 18

THE SPOKEN AND THE WRITTEN WORD

Golden text: The word of God is living and sharper than any two-edged sword. Hebrews 4:12.

Lesson: Acts 17:1-15; Thessalonians 5:1-12.

Devotional reading: Psalm 119:9-16.

Explanations and Comments

Successful Evangelism at Thessalonica, Acts 17:1-4. Although at Philippi we had suffered greatly, and had been insulted, yet on we came to your city and boldly declared to you the gospel of God in spite of great opposition—in some such words Paul later wrote to the Thessalonians (1 Thess. 2:2). On the way Paul and his companions passed through the cities of Amphipolis and Apollonia. At Thessalonica they tarried several months, as we know from Paul's letters, but Luke our historian gives an account of Paul's preaching for only three successive sabbaths. There was a synagogue here and in it on these Sabbaths Paul "reasoned from the Scriptures," that is, cited scriptural passages which were prophetic of the Christ; and then showed that Jesus fulfilled these prophecies, that it behooved the Church to suffer and to rise again from the dead. Thus he reasoned, or argued, that the Jesus whom he proclaimed to them was the Christ.

The result of Paul's preaching was that some of the Jews, many of the devout Greeks (Greeks who attended the synagogue and worshipped God), and many of the chief women, were convinced of the truth of his message and "consorted with Paul and Silas," cast their lot in with them and shared their way of life. They were afterwards zealous in extending the good news Paul brought to them, for in his letter Paul says, "From you hath sounded forth the word of the Lord, not only in Macedonia and Achaia (Greece), but in every place your faith to Godward is gone forth."

On to Berea, Acts 17:10-12. Paul and Silas left Thessalonica at night. They continued their way westward to the city of Berea. There in the synagogue they found unprejudiced Jews who were willing to give him a message a fair hearing.

Finding that Paul's words and the prophecies were in agreement, many of the Bereans were believed, as did also many of the Greek women of honorable estate, and many of the Greek men.

Helped Build A Church

Tiger Skin Was Presented To Missionary In India

The "tiger skin that built a church," was on exhibition at Chalmers church, Ottawa, where the seventh General Council of the United Church of Canada was in session. The double-striped skin, presented several years ago to Rev. H. H. Smith, missionary at Sitamar, Northern India, by the Subah Sahib, of Maundassur, was sold when Mr. Smith found himself short of funds with which he intended to build a new church. It brought $700, enough to allow completion of the church.

The new Waterloo Bridge, London, England, will be opened for traffic at the end of 1936.

Only One Way Out

Debts Can Be Cleared When Borrowing Is Stopped

There is no practical way out of debt except to repay it. A dollar borrowed is a dollar owed and a dollar on which interest must be paid.

We are writing now in the entangling meshes of the debt we have woven for ourselves. There is only one way to free ourselves: to stop public borrowing; to spend on government only those sums which can be obtained by reasonable taxation.

Marble Arch, now opposite Edgeware Road, London, stood until 1851 at the central entrance of Buckingham Palace.

These architects who try to make new houses look very old might try renting them for a year.

DEFENCE POLICY FOR CANADA IS A LIVE QUESTION

Victoria.—In a statement declaring Canada has become "defence conscious" in recent months, Hon. Ian Mackenzie, minister of national defence, said primary considerations are a development program for Canadian defence and the extent to which taxpayers are able to meet new burdens and new taxes.

Nature and extent of a program necessary for Canadian defence, he said, were questions for the government, "upon the advice of its experts." The question of new tax burdens is "essentially a question for the parliament and the people of Canada."

Mr. Mackenzie said the defence policy by which he had been governed since taking office and by which he intended to be governed was based upon:

"The general interest of Canada."
"The security and welfare of our Canadian people and Canadian homes."
"Due regard for any obligations that may be ours."

"In other words, our defence policy for Canada is not a dictated policy. It is a policy for the defence of Canada in peace, or in the eventuality of war."

After reviewing the principles laid down at the imperial conference of 1923, he said, "The following are, therefore, our responsibilities:

(a) Maintenance of international security.
(b) Preservation of strict neutrality, law and order, within our territorial waters in time of peace.

(c) Protection of our coasts and sea-borne trade in time of war."
The present government of Canada, he said, "is now and has been since assuming office acutely conscious of its primary responsibility for local defence."

Mr. Mackenzie said the question of national defence was now receiving wide attention through the country. "In recent months Canada has become defence conscious. That is all to the good; as the minister charged with responsibility in this matter, I welcome discussion."

"It was my intention to refrain from further comment on the matter until in the natural course of events I present the government's policy to parliament." However, in the current discussion, he observed a great deal of misinformation and misunderstanding. There has been a tendency also in certain quarters to try to make a partisan political issue of the grave problems of Canada's defence. This is deplorable and I am sure that the good sense of the Canadian people will give such tendencies a speedy check.

"Public opinion can function effectively only on accurate information, and as the government will require the assistance of informed public opinion in dealing with the special problems that exist with regard to defence matters at this time, I feel I should point out the essential facts. Healthy discussion based on real understanding will be helpful to all concerned."

Swedish Flyer Rescued

Forced Down Off Irish Coast After Atlantic Hop

Valencia, Ireland.—Forced down in the Atlantic on an attempted direct flight from New York to Stockholm, Kurt Björkvall was rescued by the French trawler 'Imbrin' off the westernmost point of Ireland.

First word from the long-overdue Swedish airman, who had not been reported since he took off from Floyd Bennett field, came in a wireless message from the trawler.

"Björkvall saved (saved)" it said.

Valencia is an island on the western coast of southern Ireland.

(Björkvall's flight ended, it was estimated, about 2,375 miles from New York and approximately 1,000 miles short of Stockholm, is goal.

New Cunard-White Star Liner

Sister Ship To Queen Mary Of Larger Dimensions

Glasgow.—The new Cunard-White Star liner to be built by John Brown and Company will likely be 3,000 tons heavier and from 12 to 18 feet longer than the R.M.S. Queen Mary, it was revealed.

William Beardmore and Company of Glasgow, announced it had received the contract to supply hull castings for the new liner, which to date is known only as No. 552.

"The 552 is expected to have rather larger dimensions than the Queen Mary," the company said. "Its tonnage is likely to exceed the 80,773 of the Queen Mary by about 2,000 tons and to be from 12 to 18 feet longer. Thousands of workers throughout the country, as well as at Clydebank, will benefit by the liner's construction. In the case of the Queen Mary, 200 firms in 60 towns supplied accessories for the ship."

The new liner will be laid down on the same ways as those used for the Queen Mary. A contract between the Cunard-White Star Line and John Brown and Company was signed recently.

In the foundation of the monument which will embody the "Cross of Sacrifice," earth from Vimy Ridge, the Somme and the Ypres salient is to be deposited. The stone erection will bear the following inscription:

"Erected by former members of the Canadian corps in memory of General Sir Arthur Currie, G.C.M.G., K.C.B., V.D., L.D., B.C.L., general officer commanding Canadian corps in the field, 1917-1919. Principal and vice-chancellor, McGill University, 1920-1933. They served 'till death—why not we'."

Empire Education

Urges Students From Canada To Spend One Year In English Schools

Montreal.—An "empire education" should be the goal of Canadian students, according to Dr. John Murray, principal of Exeter University and former member of the British parliament. In his founder's day address at McGill University, Dr. Murray urged students in the Dominion to endeavor to spend one year in an English school during their "impressionable age."

Alberta Highways

Adult Education

Western Educationist Sees Value In Debating Clubs

Halifax.—Aims and advantages of adult education were reviewed here by E. A. Corbett, former extension director of Alberta University and now director of the Canadian Association for Adult Education, at a joint meeting of Halifax service clubs.

"There is no better way of getting young people off the street corners than by holding debates," the western educationist said. "There were more than 160 debating clubs in the province of Alberta."

Adult education provided means by which people might bring out talents in later life; helped those with little or no education; helped workers to adjust themselves to swiftly-changing industrial life and to acquire a sound philosophy of life. Education of mature people was on the theory that "man has not one mental birth, but a series of mental rebirths throughout life, and that during each decade of his life, new powers and new possibilities come to maturity."

Relief Grants

Grants To The Provinces To Remain The Same

Ottawa.—Relief grants-in-aid to the provinces for the third quarter of the current fiscal year will be continued without change. Acting Prime Minister Ernest Lapointe announced. These payments, under the Relief Act for 1936, are subject to revision every three months but have been left unchanged since the start of the fiscal year April 1.

Other matters dealt with at the weekly cabinet council included works contracts and the trade agreement under discussion between a trade mission from Germany and the Dominion government. Mr. Lapointe said progress was made in negotiations with the representatives of the Nazi government, but much remained to be done before an agreement could be announced.

Relief grants-in-aid, initiated by the Bennett administration, involves the outright payment of fixed monthly sums to the provinces for direct relief, with the provincial governments making up any deficiency. During the last session of parliament an appropriation of $26,000,000 was passed for this purpose.

Payments have been made since April 1 at the rate of $2,345,657 monthly. Under the last administration the highest monthly rate reached was $1,757,250 and soon after the present government took office a general increase in these payments brought the monthly total to $2,066,213.

State Socialism

Says Substantial Part Of Canada Is Subject To Regeneration

Oshawa, Ont.—William H. Moore, Liberal member of parliament for Ontario riding, told a service club meeting that government ownership "is only state socialism."

"We have an example in our railways, which own hotels, laundries and barber shops," said Mr. Moore, discussing government ownership. "Our central bank marks the coming of the economic state," he continued. "Do you realize that we are in a state socialism today? The relief situation is an aspect, when one-third of our income is distributed to keep alive others."

"A very substantial part of our country is subjected to regimentation. Names sometimes deceive us. Mr. Trotsky and Lenin once called themselves Socialists," he concluded.

Happy With Soldiers

Lord Tweedsmuir At Home When In Company Of Military Men

Ottawa.—"All my life I have been happiest in the company of soldiers," Lord Tweedsmuir said in a brief address to the officers of the Princess Louise Dragoon Guards at the cavalry regiment's 63rd annual dinner.

The governor-general said that during his recent trans-Canada trip he had met men wearing medals for almost every episode of British army history in the last half-century. One man he met in British Columbia, he said, was wearing an Indian Mutiny medal. The sight of a veteran, he added, "is a reminder of the extraordinary part played in war by the Canadian army."

RUSSIA CLAIMS NEUTRALITY PACT BEING VIOLATED

Moscow.—The Soviet Union, in a communication, declared it would seek again a free hand in Spain unless Portugal, Italy and Germany immediately halt military assistance to the Spanish insurgents.

The note was delivered by Molevich Kagan, Russian representative on the non-intervention committee, to representatives of the signatory countries in London.

"If violations are not stopped immediately, the Soviet government will free itself from any obligations to the agreement," the communication said.

Kagan specially charged Germany, Italy and Portugal with sending arms and war planes to the insurgents in direct violation of the international neutrality pact which they signed.

"The Soviet government," the note declared, "cannot consent to conversion of the non-interference pact into a screen for concealing military assistance rendered the rebels against the government by some participants of the pact."

"The rebels now possess many bombing planes of German and Italian origin which did not belong previously to the Spanish army," it was charged, "and the testimony of witnesses proves that supplies of arms from Portugal continue."

Berlin.—Russia's charge that assistance had been given Spanish Fascists by Germany, Italy and Portugal was not mentioned in the German press.

Instead, the papers printed, under a Paris dateline, a story reporting the arrival at Alicante, Spain, of the Soviet steamship Neva, which was said to have unloaded a cargo under cover of darkness.

The despatch said the shipment was declared by the vessel's officers to be 1,360 cases of dry fish, which proved to be rifles; 4,000 boxes in which there was said to be corned beef, but which actually contained cartridges, and 1,200 bales of supposed hides, which proved to be cloth for uniforms and military belts.

Maritime segments of the commission began at Dorchester, N.B., seat of the Maritime penitentiary.

Bury That Hatchet!

The Weekly Market News: It is difficult to regard re- crimination and abuse as an effective form of argument and in the discussions which have taken place relative to the minimum price for wheat and the marketing of wheat a good deal has been said when merely results in stirring up strife.

The Western Producer, the Pool organ in Saskatchewan, comments editorially at great length on 2 advertisements issued by Winnipeg Grain Exchange and Northwest Grain Dealers' Ass'n respectively. These advertisements, as is generally known, took exception to misrepresentations made by opponents of the present method of grain marketing and organisations in competition with the elevator companies.

With regard to the protest meetings held, it seems fair to say that the general sentiment at these meetings is a long way from being unanimous. If a meeting is organised by a any particular group, with a specific purpose in view, and eloquent speakers present only one side of the case, it would be surprising if readymade resolutions were not adopted.

Again, there arises the matter of dissatisfaction with the minimum price arrangement. If the open market price went below 90c, that is, to the level at which the Wheat Board would step in, those who are so actively advocating Wheat Board operation, would see their wishes fulfilled. But that would entail a material decline from present price levels and just how that would help the producer is difficult to understand. It would appear that the price for Canadian wheat in the world market, that is, the price at which it can be, and is being sold, in satisfactory volume, makes any immediate worries about the minimum price unnecessary.

The Western Producer has referred to the cost of carrying advertising in the country newspapers, which is a considerable item, of course; and it is just as true to say that running the Western Producer, holding meetings all over the province, furnishing speakers and so on, mean that considerable expense is also involved. Someone has got to foot the bill, and if the process is continued and enlarged, the bill becomes a formidable document, especially when it is probable no useful result can be achieved.

The Federal Government has taken steps to get impartial advice by appointing a 1-man commission in the person of Mr Justice Turgeon. Judging from present advices, the forthcoming inquiry will have the widest possible scope. It takes in everything concerning the production and marketing of grain. Surely it is advisable, under the circumstances, to desist from bitter argument and await the outcome of the investigation. It has already been pointed out that with prices at or around prevailing levels there is, in our opinion, little justification for a campaign of re- crimination, or indeed a campaign of any kind, for the producer is protected by the natural course of prices, and Canadian wheat is moving into consuming channels at a satisfactory rate, which is helpful all around.

In any event, the issue under discussion is one that should be settled without bitterness. It can be settled at the cost of the commission already arranged for, and at no further cost of expensive attack and counter attack. The producer will benefit materially when his champions of varying shades of thought make up their mind, or indeed are compelled to bury the hatchet.

Alberta's fur marketing service is to be discontinued, it is officially announced by the Government.

The service was inaugurated owing to many complaints from trappers that they were not getting a square deal from dealers, both inside and outside the province.

Then, when the Government sales were organised the trappers did not patronize them, and this service "has been maintained at a considerable cost."

Thou Shalt Not Love

— A NOVEL BY —
GEORGIA CRAIG

He answered her as swiftly: "To know better than to use my regular line with you! Please give me credit for some good sense."

Starr could not have told why it was, but suddenly she felt her eyes drawn away from her dance partner as though toward a magnet. A little to one side of the room, Michael Fairbourne was standing alone, watching her. Handsome, debonaire Michael. He smiled when her eyes met his, and his own gray eyes spoke a message.

They said, "Well done, Starr!" He was applauding her as he might have applauded an actress who was giving an extraordinarily good performance. That was all she meant to him. What was it he had said? "All I ask is that you keep your name in the headlines!"

He was pleased to see her making a hit with Lance, because any new flame of Lance Marlowe's was bound to be the subject of plenty of conversation—and newspaper copy. And every mention of her name by word of mouth gossip, through the tender mercies of the columnists, or as straight news would send the sales of his book soaring.

Suddenly within Starr Ellison was born an angry resentment against Michael Fairbourne. How dared he stand there so smug and self-satisfied, watching her carry on her pitiful mockery? What did he know of the reasons of desperation which had urged her to be his open seamstress to riches via the publicity route? He was making her dangle on the end of a string like a puppet, and adding the supreme insult of applauding her gyrations. How dared he!

No, that was not quite fair. There was a two-sided bargain. Though he could never guess the reason for her acceptance of his offer, he had made her understand only too well what she expected of her. She, in her desperation, had been glad enough to accept his offer. How could she have known that association with Michael would stir so much of bitterness in the depths of her? How could she have guessed, for one wild moment, how it had come to be that sometimes when he was alone with her at that Egyptian penthouse which was the result of his crazy dreams that there would come times when she was afraid to trust herself to guess? How could she ever have guessed anything of that electric quality in the flame of him, that too often showed in his gray eyes when he did not imagine it, and that sent fiery warning signals dancing along through her veins?

Oh, it was going to be hard to play the game to the end—so very hard! But play it she must, and would. Yet it took all that was in her sometimes to keep from reeling when they would be talking together over some point and he would be so close to her that she could hear his heart pounding. She would have to hold onto herself to keep from swaying.

Her lids drooped over her eyes so that neither man could see them. Starr answered her own question. Life had been a question before. Now there was a new one—the question of what to do when love came unbidden. She knew what the answer was. She must learn to skim the surface of life as Lance Marlowe did.

She turned at the man whose arms encircled her, suddenly feeling the need of his worldly philosophy. He was smiling at her as the music stopped. He said:

"Have a little drink!" "Don't they always say, 'Neither I'll drink won't do you any harm'?" Starr laughed, but shook her head. "Me—I'm not so sure."

But he was leading her toward a party concealed bar, elaborately stiled up in modernistic blue and silver. Again Starr shook her head faintly. He persisted. "Do you good. A little drink softens life's sharp edges."

She gave a queer little laugh. "But my life hasn't any sharp edges," she lied. Lance's restraint, his sense of proportion, that was almost uncanny: "Nonsense! Everybody has sharp edges!" "Even I?" she parried.

"Even I?" he mocked. "Most particularly I, because I fear you are not going to fall for me as rapidly as I had hoped." That destroyed their seriousness. Suddenly Starr was laughing again, skimming the surface.

A gray little form was gathered around the bar. It looked like a cat, but Starr did not see Michael. Lance glanced around as he found a lone stool for Starr, calling to the bartender: "Champagne!" To the group at large he suggested: "Join me?"

How about us making a community toast? A toast to—whom?"

A blond man whose hair was tousled and dress shirt awry weaved away from the bar and waved his glass. He was gloriously drunk, and one moment later it was quite as plain that he had been participating in a conversation that had for its subject Starr Ellison and the debut party being given in her honor by her publishers. The bartender was pouring the champagne. The blond man boomed out:

"A toast? Sure we'll give a toast! Let's all drink a toast to the newest and loveliest chateleine of Lance Marlowe's penthouse—Starr Ellison. Long may she wave!"

The glass dropped from Starr's nerveless fingers and splintered against the bar. Stephanie giggled, breaking a tense silence. Her eyes clashed with Starr's as she lifted her glass and drank deep. It was a deliberate insult.

The drunken man's words roused in everybody's mind the same thought; that the man in his cups may have known whereof he spoke, and that in wine there is truth. Very likely he knew that Lance intended to make Starr his mistress; that perhaps she had already agreed, so that it was no longer a secret. It would be in character. Her reputation was against her.

Lance said quietly, as he advanced a threatening step, his fists clenched: "Take that back!" The drunk swayed on his feet defiantly and leered knowingly, his glance wavering from Starr to Lance, and back again.

One of the girls squealed: "Oh, a fight!" Stephanie's high voice cut in: "A fight, yes! For the honor of a woman who doesn't know what the word means! How exasperating!"

Lance hesitated in his attitude of threatening, glanced one at Starr and then showed his good sense. He grasped the obnoxious blond hustler by the arms and led him outside. Starr found herself trembling like a leaf. Never in her life had she felt quite so alone and friendless. No one approached her. But everything had caught up with her in a rush, overwhelmed her. She was glad Michael was not there to be a witness to her humiliation, and then in the next breath was sorry that he was not. Had he seen, perhaps he might have been—no, he wouldn't be sorry. Why should he be? It was all good publicity, and that was what he wanted. That would have been all he could have seen in the entire episode. The human quantitative, or such a small matter as that Starr Ellison might have a soul that could be hurt—that would only be a small matter.

Almost immediately Lance Marlowe was back, swinging along jauntily, head high. As he reached her side Starr's lips formed the words:

"What did you do?" He said calmly, as if with a slow smile flickered across his lips: (To Be Continued)

Where Bicycle Is Popular

Number in England Almost Doubled in Five Years

A London letter in the Ottawa Journal says what will be to many the most surprising fact revealed by last year's traffic census is that the road vehicle which has been making the greatest advance in popularity in recent years is the humble push-bike. The figures show that the number of pedal-cyclists on our roads has almost doubled since 1931.

Though the bicycle is ubiquitous there are certain towns where it enjoys special popularity. Of these cities Oxford is believed to head the list, a fact which suggests that even in this age of motoring it is not every undrained road can afford to keep its car. Southampton, a town which led notably in the first great boom of bikes and bloomers in the "Naughty Nineties," still possesses an exceptionally large number of cycling citizens who, like their parents and grandparents, still turn out in hundreds to promenade the Avenue and Common.

The enormous number of cycles in use may possibly offset the impression gained from accident statistics that cycling is the most dangerous form of road transport.

New Species of Fish

Live On Oysters And Eat Standing On Their Heads

A new species of fish that raid oyster beds and stand on their heads while they eat has been found off the Queensland coast.

They are not compound with any other known species, T. Marshall, Queensland museum ichthyologist, their discoverer, says. He believes they are entirely new to science.

The fish range from 16 to 35 pounds and stretch oysters from supports with their tough lips. When eating they stand on their head with their tail visible above water. The upper body is a metallic green-blue, the lower portion silver and the tail a brilliant yellow.

State Credit Houses.

While nothing definite has, as yet, come to light regarding the establishing of a State Credit House in this town, steps are being taken for the opening of one (or possibly two) at the town of Duffield, where it is said a building is being put in shape for the proposed S.C.H. Another gentleman in the same town would like to see a S.C.H. set up south of the railway tracks.

In Edmonton there will be at least six State Credit Houses when payments of social credit basic dividends commence there, states W. Bullock, who has charge of the registration organisation in that city. A start would be made with a staff of 20, in compiling the registration forms for that city. The staff will be composed of voluntary helpers.

Policyholders Own the "Assets" of Life Insurance Companies

As a great co-operative enterprise, Life Insurance has built up Assets in Canada totalling, approximately, two billion dollars. Yet these Assets are relatively small when it is realized that they are jointly owned by about 3,500,000 policyholders—one-third of Canada's population.

On the average, each policyholder owns $571 as his share of the total Assets in Life Companies operating in Canada. Obviously, the great majority of policyholders are men and women of ordinary means—thrifty people who, year by year, have entrusted to Life Insurance part of their savings so that they may have financial security against the uncertain future.

These policyholders represent the best type of Canadian citizens. They have sought to preserve their financial independence, and, as thrifty citizens, neither they nor their dependants are ever likely to become charges upon government or municipal relief.

To protect the interests of these 3,500,000 Canadian policyholders, Life Insurance Companies have invested their Assets in government and municipal bonds—in first mortgages—in public utilities and industrial enterprises—and in other authorized securities.

The soundness of the Investment policy of the Companies has been tried and proven during periods of severe financial stress. Governing and corporate bodies in which policyholders' moneys are invested have, until recently, maintained the integrity of their obligations. This has made it possible in turn for the companies, in their capacity as trustees for the policyholders, to fulfill every obligation guaranteed by their policies.

Now, however, there is a growing tendency to repudiate, by legislation, public and private debts, regardless of the debtor's ability to pay. Legislation which tends to destroy the ownership of public and private property places an unjust burden upon life insurance policyholders.

Trees Available for Farmers.

With reference to the all important function of tree planting in Alberta, it was learned that certain types of trees were available to farmers for transplanting and could be secured for this purpose on application to the Forestry Division of the Provincial Department of Lands and Mines.

The principal object was to provide transplants for replacement of less valuable species in shelterbelts and windbreaks; to introduce a more desirable product than the native variety found in the bluffs now in existence; and to give protection to such products by planting them in stands of trees already established so as to provide necessary shade for the new species to ensure a healthy and permanent growth.

Available for planting in the Spring of 1937 will be limited quantities of white spruce, jackpine, green ash, elm, bur oak, Siberian larch, lodgepole pine and Scotch pine. Application forms can be secured from the Director of Forestry, Dept. of Lands and Mines, Edmonton, and should state quantity and species, and be sent to the Department before the end of the present year for trees required for planting next spring.
